KARAH HARVEY, CPHI(C)

Karah Harvey has been a member of CIPHI and certified public health inspector since 2014. She holds an Honours Bachelor of Kinesiology from Lakehead University and an after-degree in Environmental Health from Concordia University of Edmonton.

Karah works as a Public Health Inspector with Alberta Health Services, where her current focus includes land use, contaminated sites, healthy built environments, water reuse, and emerging environmental public health issues. She is also a guest lecturer at Concordia University of Edmonton, supporting the development of future environmental public health professionals.

An active member of the Alberta Branch for over a decade, Karah is committed to advancing the profession and looks forward to contributing at the national level.
